

Cid's Airship

The affable Cid greets the party from his large airship, in which he lives and uses to explore Square Grid since Sylas' last Awakening. His craft can both sail, as well as take to the skies, but is currently undergoing some repairs. Cid hands Luka a piece of map that he had drawn from his vantage point above the pirate fleet previously, hoping that it might aid the party's quest. However, the map does not show the positions of the ships, but has an accompanying log of all the ships that he saw.

Cid's Notes:

The ships follow the rules of a Battleship puzzle (which differ from the Battleship game), and any observed quirks noted in the log. The numbers along the map edges are the total count of ship sections along that row or column, while the numbers within the grid are not a part of the Battleship puzzle.

Ship Log

	8 5 5 2 3 6
Description: This large, light-colored ship has an equine-shaped figurehead
Observation: Nothing out of the ordinary
	6 8
Description: This ship resembles a fortress, with a figurehead shaped like a chess rook fitted with dual cannons
Observation: This dreadnought thrived in the open waters and did not touch an edge
	6 4
Description: This lone generic military cruiser has the standard design and paint job
Observation: Locked in closed combat with and orthogonally touching the next ship
	8 5
Description: This brigantine has a figurehead of a lion with a stylized mane, whose mouth opens to reveal a cannon
Observation: Locked in closed combat with and orthogonally touching the previous ship
	5 2 5
Description: This sinister ship has black sails, depicting three skulls and crossbones
Observation: Nothing out of the ordinary
	4 4 4
Description: This pink ship is adorned with hearts, and has a figurehead in the shape of a waterfowl at its bow
Observation: The waterfowl figurehead was so big that the bow was counted as 2 ship sections
	5 5
Description: This light-brown caravel has a sheep figurehead and a life of its own
Observation: Nothing out of the ordinary
	5 4
Description: This stealthy yellow submarine has a green underside lined with torpedo cannons
Observation: The submerged submarine could be adjacent to or even underneath another ship
	11
Description: This small black boat resembles a coffin, with candles lit on the edges
Observation: No other ship dared to be within 2 squares radius (both orthogonally and diagonally) of this boat and its fearsome captain
	7
Description: This yellow half-crescent raft has a small sail and two paddle-wheels at its sides
Observation: This raft was so small that it stayed in the calmer waters along the edges
